Cardinals Win Over Blackie, Score 3-2

Wednesday night at Blackie was the scene of one of the fastest games of the season for the teams in play.

After eight minutes of the first period Blackie scored but with two minutes to go and in a clever play Joe Leslie tied the score for the Cardinals.

During the second period Sturt Beagle made a play unassisted which deserves much favorable comment. Harry McCullough then, with a but let like shot that stretched the hem made another shot for the lead.

During the third period Blackie rallied back with one goal and fought hard to tie the score but the Cardinals proved too well a match. Sharp played a sensational game for the Cardinals. In spite of being hurt in the second period he kept in play till the end of the game.

Smothering Sensations Faint and Dizzy Spells

The feelings of faintness; those dizzy spells; all-gone moods; smothering sensations which come over people, from time to time, are symptoms which should not go unheeded. They indicate an abnormal condition of the body, particularly of the vital organs, and should be given immediate attention. Those suffering in this way will find in Milburn's Health Nerve Pills a safe and effective remedy for their health, build up their run down system, and bring back their bodily vigor.

Christianity And The Crisis

Much has been said and written about the economic crisis against which the people of the world have been battling for four years without avail. Many speeches have been made; world statesmen have had their say. Many books, many editorials, many articles have been published in which the economists have set forth their views—but speeches, books, editorials and articles have but served to illustrate the complexity and variety of the problems which clamor for solution. Many remedies have been suggested, but few, if any, have been adopted. The reason for this is that the decisions have been far from unanimous. In some cases treatments and, consequently, the patients can scarcely be blamed for their hesitation to apply the cures prescribed. Despite the claim of expert opinion, however, the patients themselves have given abundant evidence of vitality which is, perhaps, the surest sign of ultimate recovery. They have displayed a strong determination, thinking out things for themselves, to seek a way out of present difficulties and a way back to a prosperity which they are determined to make permanent.

One of the best contributions to the "non-expect" thought upon the crisis and the various problems contributing to, and arising from, post-war reconstruction is to be found in the excellent book by John G. Ross, recently published under the title "Christianity and the Crisis". The contributors are clergymen, clerical or lay, but their method of approach to the various phases of their subject is not made from the purely theological angle. When they discuss the confusions of the present situation, they write with knowledge and vision, and it is clear whether they are in mind primarily at last resort confusion (which might be called "despair") or of social, economic and international confusion (which, on the other hand, might not have been expected). One is forced early to the conclusion that these clergymen are not mere visionaries actuated by high moral purpose but divorced from practical affairs. One would for example have to travel far to even begin to understand the discussion of financial and monetary problems contributed by Dr. Hewitt Johnson, Dean of Canterbury. One is not surprised to learn that besides being a Doctor of Divinity, the Dean has degrees in Science and Engineering.

The preface furnishes the general theme upon which the volume is based, and the thought which should be an inspiration to all who, giving a sincere effort, are trying to find a way out of the difficulties which now confront us:

"A period of post-war exhaustion had begun in 1918, as in 1915, with its social antagonism and moral confusion, and civil disturbances more violent than anything we have known this time in England or America. Yet the religious sense of man's dependence on God, so far as the true foundation of civil and religious society had been already laid, had the establishment of democratic government had begun, slavery had been abolished.

"It is the belief of those who are contributing to "Christianity and the Crisis" that the same moral power is with us today, because the same religious spirit is at work—indeed, as most close observers believe, emerging now in greater strength from the confusions and disloyalties of the past two decades."

"The issue, indeed, is simple. The motives and methods of human life are not sufficiently moralized: it was to moralize the machinery of production, to limit the power of selfishness, that Wilberforce and Shaftesbury were working a century ago; but the same motives, the same love of family life, and the same spiritual activities, need further moralization. Money has been overcooked in its moral aspect and treated as machinery ... and, because the nations and their representatives have not yet learned the moral elements of international behavior, we stand at this moment on the brink of retrieving disaster".

Crime Against Youth

Hon. R. J. Manion Denounces War In

Appalling Temperance

War was denounced in emphatic terms by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, and Canada's representative at the recent disarmament conference at Geneva in an address to the Women's Canadian Club at Ottawa.

"One hundred years from today, or possibly sooner, we will be looked upon as barbarians for permitting war to exist," the minister declared. "War is a curse against youth—the elders were the blunders and youth pay the price."

On this continent the nations were peace loving. "War is asathetic disease between the United States and the United Kingdom, as between Canada and the United Kingdom, or indeed between the United States and the United Kingdom." Dr. Marion observed.

Something New For Dances

When the Gordon Highlanders with their swinging kilts and bagpipes and drums, arrived in Copenhagen, Denmark, for the opening of the British exhibition they attracted nearly as much attention as Prince George of Wales who opened the show. The Dances had never seen men in kilts except on the films, and the novelty aroused great interest.

The King's generous contribution to the exhibition include the following:

J. Johann Zoffany); Portrait of a Princess, Princess Mary, (John Hopper).

From Hampton Court Palace: Princess Mary as Diana (Sir Peter Lely).

The would Tag Offenders

The government should take stronger measures and deal with the careless motorist in such a way as to bring him to justice. Fine and jail sentences seem to have no effect in reducing recklessness.

This paper again suggests that a red tag be ordered attached to every car driven by a motorist who has been driving recklessly.

Soviets Take Quarter Crop

But Farmers Allowed to Sell Surplus
In Private Market

The Soviet government had been informed that collection of the 1933 grain crop from the peasantry had been completed.

About 20,000,000 to 23,000,000 metric tons were obtained, foreign observers understood, by forced purchase at fixed prices set by the administration. (The metric ton is 2,000 pounds.)

The surplus, amounting to about 25 per cent of the total production, will be devoted to feeding the urban population and the army, export and reserves.

A report, addressed to Joseph Stalin, leader of the Communist party, Chairman Chernov of the agricultural section of the council of people's commissars, pointed out that 1933 grain was harvested from 200 million to two million acres of land when collections were limited by a poor crop. The full quota had been reached.

Another suggestion was to allow the peasants to sell their surplus production to private markets, as contrasted with the former procedure of taking a fixed proportion of whatever was produced.

The price of bread, which still is 100 per cent of the cost of the Russian diet, has decreased considerably recently as a result of the sale of the excess grain.

Chernov called special attention to importance of a system of political mechanisms which this year assumed administrative control of every administrative unit.

Hoppers In Alberta

Insects Damaged About 11 per cent
Of Crop Last Year

Grasshoppers did about 11 per cent damage to the crops in Alberta last summer, but measures taken to fight them saved 44 per cent compared to 1932, when no control was attempted by the department of agriculture.

An area of 3,625,000 acres owned by 10,000 farmers was affected.

"It is expected that there will be another visitation by hoppers next year, with possibly 5,000,000 acres of infested area. While the territory affected will be larger, the infestation will not be as heavy, it is believed, as that of 1932, or even 1933, in proportion as fall is year is anticipated. The insects will probably advance northward as far as Alliance and Elmoa."

Urge Precautionary Measures

Experimental Farm Superintendent

Speaks On Hoppy Menace

South Saskatchewan and parts of Alberta face a serious hopper infestation this year, unless precautions are taken against the grasshopper menace, Roy E. Smith, superintendent of the Guy Lake Experimental Farm told members of the board of trade at Calgary.

Mr. Bennett spoke heavily, taking as his subject the development of money as legal tender from the days of barter and token. The address was non-political.

No one appreciated more deeply the importance of the Canadian dollar as a means of exchange than the Canadian people had conferred upon him first by appointing him leader of a great party and then by electing him prime minister of Canada. He could conceive of no better tribute to Mr. Bennett than that of being admitted to that fraternity of ex-service men who, in the best of their country's need, had offered their lives for Canada. He assured the Dominion officers and men that the war veterans of this country as a whole, that he would continue to keep their welfare and their interests close at heart.

New Planes Comfortable

Flying Boat For Mediterranean Service

At Great Lakes

Conrad has received much ribald attention in the later built passenger planes. Staff accommodation in the new "Perth" class flying boats in the Mediterranean service, has earned many admiring comments.

Fully 95 per cent of the business of the country was now being carried on by the use of no instrument, valueless as it is to the pilot in the cockpit, in the buyer's promise to pay, the prime minister said.

As the credit of an individual depended upon his reputation for ride him's promises, so did the credit of a country depend upon the manner in which it fulfilled its contracts.

Mr. Bennett described the functions and need of central bank of the country as Canada which gravitated between fifth and sixth place in the world of trading nations, but did not enlarge upon this phase of the legislative program being presented by the government.

Mr. Bennett's speech was for many years "Blind Fred, a sunny soul."

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful art student, and Peter Anson, a struggling painter, have been in love secretly, deciding to live apart until the time Peter can establish himself. Camilla's father, a man of moderate wealth, parents, is not to inherit money when she comes of age. She is saving money to go to Paris for a course in commercial art, hoping to get a job to enable her to support herself. Peter has been making rounds of the agencies, Peter, working in his studio on some idea for a fight scene he hopes will earn him a scholarship to study abroad; receives a call from a beautiful model, Sylvia Todd, who says she would like to do nothing if he will employ her. He cannot afford a model, but promises to think it over. Peter is in love, the matter of a model with Camilla and decides to employ Miss Todd, together. Camilla and Peter are good figures. They are at the height of their happiness. At home Sylvia Todd receives a letter from her mother. Peter begins work on his piece for the exhibit and Camilla, at her family's insistence, goes to a dance without late hours. Avis Werth, one of Camilla's friends, who is in love with Peter, is there. Peter is asked to dance. It would be little sheet that night for the participants of the house party, he knew. Retracing his steps by the labyrinthine way by which he had headed home, he joined the three again. Camilla and Terry Wayne drive into town to get Peter for a party. Working up his courage, Peter asks Camilla if she is also employed by Guy Matson, his friend and roommate, who once tried to tell Camilla that he had quarreled with whom Peter had quarreled. Camilla and Avis arrive to take part in the party. Peter, though being without money, slipped away to a nearby pawn shop for a few minutes to pawn his watch.

CHAPTER XXII.

"How much for that?" demanded Peter, laying his watch upon the scratched counter, over which innumerable articles have passed from desperation and reduced prices.

The unshaved proprietor squinted up nearsightedly at Peter's towering height. He cleared his throat doubtfully and picked up the watch in experienced hands.

"Oh, it's a good watch," Peter consoled. "I bought it in more flesh times when I was young and giddy."

"Sure you ain't older and giddier," observed the little man, slyly, and peered at him with a twinkle.

"The men buy it," Peter said. "I need it so you can give me the bill for the watch next Wednesday."

"Uhm—That's what they all say. Five dollars," was the brisk ultimatum.

"Oh, say listen, man. I have to have ten at least!"

"It was a hip flask I could give you more. Nobody cares what time it is these days," he spied his hands and rubbed his shoulders with elaborate boredom.

"Can't you stretch a point this time and even it upon some fellow who doesn't need it as much as I do?"

"Everybody thinks he needs money worse than anyone else," innocently.

"All right, I'll take the watch back. I may need it worse than you, after all," earnestly.

The man squared his fingers over the case and squinted at it again. Finally, "Well, ten dollars, but I'll never get that for it if you don't show up to claim it."

"I won't carry it back," Peter assured him with relief. It pained the floor of the dusty shop with impatience, while the owner prodded the money and the claim check.

What tragic needs and heartaches the old collection of objects represented!

Peter felt woefully depressed in their surroundings.

The man returned from his dusty little desk in the rear of the store. "Hope you have had a good time with the girls. I am pleased with a twin, too, as he handed the ticket and the ten dollars to Peter.

Peter appreciated of his shrewd conjecture. "How'd you know?"

"Well, men mostly book their four days in three or four reasons. They're hungry or want liquor, or have family troubles or need money to spend on a girl. You don't look hungry, you're not drunk and we took too happy. You have family trouble, though, so I guess he turned his head and smiled sagaciously.

"Okay! Thanks, I'll be seeing you later," Peter called, hurrying out of the shop. Ten dollars was amodity of little value to him. He had been buying bread, though. His steps rose rapidly as he turned along the street, and for the first time he rejoiced in the thought of being near Camilla for almost two days. It was time to get some fresh air. He would be little sheet that night for the participants of the house party, he knew. Retracing his steps by the labyrinthine way by which he had headed home, he joined the three again. sault dive and scampered over the sand bank toward the boathouse. Presently, there sounded the pulsing of a boat's motor, and the guide's voice came. "Come on, everyone," she called, "we're going to crash into the setting sun." No speed limit and no rules.

When they were several miles out, Camilla stopped the motor and they dived and swam about for awhile like frolicking children around an island rock.

Peter managed once to be with Camilla alone for a few minutes, clinging to the rods along the side of the boat, while they talked. "What's the idea of Terry acting like a fance?" he smiled.

"Peter, we have to have a party, we have to have a party," she panted, "but we have to pay the game now that we started. No foul, now. We have to win. It makes me laugh the way we're putting it over on Asis, though," she chuckled. "She always was a cat, so I think I mind scratching a little, too."

"But Ca—" he began, when they were interrupted with the decision that everyone must go ashore. They were shown up stairs around rooms over the boathouse, where shouts and laughter and splashing water made pandemonium for a short time, then everyone sank weakly into chairs. Peter sat down on the screened veranda to wait outside. Someone suggested a rubber of bridge. Some declined, others insisted avidly.

"How much?" Cathie asked.

"Penny," scoffed Warren Selby. "Better make it a dollar. I have to get back that two hundred I lost to Terry the other night. The old man won't pay my bill if it's due, if I starved."

"She's a stink thought Camilla. "He has no idea what the word means. And I wonder what he thinks he does to deserve an allowance."

"Make it ten a point for this time," Cathie insisted. "He's playing with girls."

"Okay," approved Peter. "Penney?"

For the second time, Peter had mapped out the electric grill into the furnace, to make the metaphor modern. How could he play bridge for ten cents a point with ten dollars in his pocket? Besides, he was no champion. The game, however, was played practically no time to it as compared with these idlers who played for hours of every day and night.

Old Legend Shattered

Cow Bay Not Named After Old Settler's Name

Origin of the name given Cow Bay, Cape Breton, still remains a mystery but old legend for years has surrounded it has been shattered. Evidence dispels the old story the name, however, was coined practically no time to it as compared with these idlers who played for hours of every day and night.

Canadian Growers Get Better Prices From Purchasers on Continent

With much better prices being received in the markets on the European continent, Antwerp Valley apple growers are beginning to export more fruit to foreign ports.

A glut of the fruit on the English market sent prices to low levels and already several cargoes have gone forward to Rotterdam, the fruit being destined largely for continental points.

British Insurance

British's 47,000,000 people held life insurance worth $15,160,27,035 at the end of 1930, according to statistics just issued by the British Assurance Commission. Policies numbered 63,946,181, an increase of nearly 2,000,000 over 1930. Claims cost the companies $141,500,000.

Everything was alright, so long as others were not injured. But there was Syria, and now Avis; and there was Terry before him, smiling into Camilla's eyes and not daring to anticipate as inevitable an evening in her room. Peter was thinking for his wife. He would get Camilla to announce the surprise this evening.

But he had no opportunity to talk with Camilla alone until late that night. As soon as they arrived at the cottage, there were cocktails and then they returned to the beach and the waves.

At the insistence of the others, Camilla dived another series for Peter's benefit. He was amazed at her skill. Modest little thing, she never boasted about what she could do. And she could do it much more well. She was so wonderful that he didn't deserve her.

She swam ashore after the somer-

New Appliance Used

Apparatus for Transfusion of Blood Has Many Advantages

A demonstration was given at Leeda General Infirmary of a new appliance for the transfusion of blood. The demonstration was given by Dr. Paul Fauchet, who was first shown his appliance in Paris a fortnight earlier.

The great advantages of the new method are that it prevents the exposure of the blood to the air and sanitizes it its transmission.

The apparatus consists of a small electrical appliance with two tubes, one taking the blood from the donor and the other transmitting it to the patient.

Prefer To Walk Down Number of People Use Elevator Only

It is a law of physics that "what goes up must come down," but imagine that it's impossible when mathematical figures show that the 16,000 persons who use the elevators in the New Federal building at Boston, daily, 8,500 persons go up, but the cars carry only 7,500 down.

But it was all cleared up yesterday when the manager of the building said the discrepancy is due to the desire of some to indulge in stair-walking exercise. But they all take the less vigorous form—walking down instead of up.

Urges 400th Anniversary of Landing Of Cartier Be Recognized

Public recognition throughout Canada of the 400th anniversary of the landing of Jacques Cartier on the shores of Canada was brought before the Dominion-Provincial Transport Conference by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

There is a very urgent demand for the public recognition of this anniversary," the prime minister said. The occasion might involve a "national ceremony" of what in reality was the laying of the foundation of western civilization in this country.

Figures Show Canada Has Highest

When it comes to the percentage of population employed in the civil service, or public service, Canada has the highest percentage, except little Belgium.

According to Prof. Cole, president of the Canadian Institute of Population, the percentage of population employed in the United States is 1.3, England, with public services and armed forces combined 1.5; France, 2.6; Germany, 2; Italy, 1.8; Sweden, 1.6; Australia, 1.5; U.S.S.R., 1.3; Denmark, 1.1; Holland, 1.1; Australia, 1.7; New Zealand, 1; Canada, 2.8; Leibnitz Herald.

Walking Keeps One Young

There is no better way in which to defy old age than to keep walking, insist medical doctors day after day. Dr. John H. Finlay, a former university president and now a newspaper editor, one of the most distinguished and honored citizens of New York, celebrated his 70th birthday recently. Dr. Finlay, who resides on Manhattan Island, over 25 miles from his home, gave this advice to those who wish to enjoy life: "Read a book, make a friend and take a walk."—Edmonton Journal.

Chapel Built of Logs

Novel Architecture Used in Building at Cowichan, B.C.

Of novel architecture yet fitting in with fine background, the new Chapel at Cowichan is a monument to the generosity and loyalty of present and former mentors of the school.

It is a log structure, but instead of logs being round, in which round logs are made to fit at the corners, they are fitted by a system of driftbolts, which are invisible when the logs are in place, and allow for expansion of settling.

The design was given to architect C. Stone, who also arranged the drift-bolt system with special regard to the needs of the chapel. He went to the trouble of erecting a piece of wall at Hillcrest earlier.

The building is 20 feet by 60 feet, exclusive of the vestry, and will accommodate 120 persons. The top of the bell tower is 25 feet above the ground and the top of the wall 16 feet. The interior is 12 feet high from crest, including specially cut timbers which were tongue and grooved for the gables. The walls are Douglas beams and the roof is shingled.

Grasshopper Campaign Planned for 1934

The pesky grasshopper, which caused a lot of trouble through the western states and western Canada the past season is going to be even more pestiferous next summer, according to indications given by investigations which have been going on this fall. In the north-western states drastic action is to be taken this year to meet the hunger situation. It is from these states that the hoppers generally seem to start in their sweep across our wheat country. Following a conference recently held at Fargo, North Dakota, a delegation has been sent to Washington to ask for a vote of three million dollars to fight the grasshoppers this year. At Regina a few weeks ago western Canadian officials discussed the situation as it exists in the three prairie provinces. Last season Alberta was fortunate in being able to keep the loss of crop from hoppers down to a minimum, thanks to the thorough and efficient campaign carried on by provincial, federal and university authorities. The area affected in Alberta last year was about 3,800,000 acres of crop involving 10,952 farmers. The loss on this area was only about 11 per cent, it being estimated that 44 per cent of the crop was saved. Over 70 mixing stations were operated and over 8,700 tons of bait distributed. Investigations last fall have shown that the area affected next season in Alberta will be somewhat larger, probably about five million acres, but the infestation will be somewhat lighter.
